they sent me valentines and New Year's cards. I ain't got any girls of me own, No time for 'em. When I get through preparing I'm goln' to college somewhere. I don't know yet which one, but one of the real ones, one of the big ones. Geel' and Denny's eyes he thought of the big life, full of knowledge and consummation that was coming to him over the next few years. "Gee, but it's a cinch," he added refrectively, "an' I didn't do anything at that."

TURNEY LOOKING FOR BAIL. Defaulting Note Teller Pleads Not Guilty to Indictment.

Joseph A. Turney, the defaulting note teller of the National Bank of North America, through his attorney. ST. PETERSBURG, May 17.—The Slove to-day printed what purported to dictments filed against him for grand dictments filed against him for grand larcenv and forgery.

It was expected that Turney would plead guilty to the indictments, and it created quite some surprise when Mr. Levy declared his client wanted to be released on bail. Judge Foster said he would fix bail on the two indictments late to-day. Mr. Levy told the Court that Turney was prepared to furnish any amount of ball required.
